WINTER 2015-2016

El Niño Awareness

The National Weather Service is predicting a strong El Niño weather pattern in southern California for the winter of 2015-2016.

El Niño is a weather pattern that will bring higher amounts of rain than normal to the area. This will likely cause flooding of low lying areas and flood control areas such as river bottoms and flood control basins.

Don't get caught in the floods. Relocate out of low lying areas NOW!

- ⇒ A flood can develop slowly or within minutes even without any sign of rain.
- ⇒ Avoid sleeping or setting up shelter along streams, rivers, or creeks when it has been raining for a long period of time.
- ⇒ Be aware of streams, drainage channels, basins and any area known to flood suddenly.
- ⇒ Be careful around moving water, six inches of moving water can make you fall and drown.
- ⇒ Be sure to check the firmness of the ground in front of you.
- ⇒ Avoid sleeping or sheltering under bridges and overpasses.
- ⇒ Stay safe, stay dry.
