Supervisor Biane Announces Release of 2009 Grant Book

The 2009 edition of the Resource Book for San Bernardino County Nonprofits is now available to download online, San Bernardino County Second District Supervisor Paul Biane announced on Thursday.

“My staff has compiled a lot of useful information for nonprofit organizations over the past six years as they organized the annual Second District nonprofit seminars, and much of this information can be found in the Resource Book,” Biane said. “The book is free to download, and I encourage local nonprofits to use this resource to secure more funding and expand the services they are providing in our communities.”

Supervisor Biane began distributing the Resource Book to nonprofit groups as a booklet when he hosted the Second District’s first nonprofit workshop in 2003. The Supervisor later offered the book online to make it easier for nonprofits to access the information.

The 2009 edition contains numerous details about more than 70 grants from federal, state and foundation sources. Readers will also find a chapter on the basics of grant writing as well as one that provides nonprofits with a host of valuable networking groups.

The edition also includes detailed instructions for eCivis, an online database of more than 4,000 federal, state and foundation grant opportunities. Nonprofit groups in San Bernardino County can access eCivis for free at any County library.
