Inspector Comments: On 11/21/14, a complaint reported to our office states that sushi rolls are being stored on counter at room temperature, and soy beans are prep wrapped and stored at room temperature as well. Besides complainant alleges that these products are being hidden from inspector during an inspection. Sometimes, complainant adds that they are hidden in a car and then served to customers. Upon investigation, observed California rolls on a party tray at room temperature (72 deg F) waiting to be delivered; and also boiled green soy beans in wrapped bowls out at room temperature ready to be served. Asked manager on site for how long they have been out at room temperature and said that they have been out for not more than 2 hours. Ensure potential hazardous food kept at room temperature are time marked to show that they are to be discarded after 4 hours at room temperature. Case closed.
