Inspector Comments: On Wednesday Jan 28th at approximately 7:00 PM, I found what appears to be metal shavings embedded in cornbread that my wife purchased at the Boston Market restaurant located in Rancho Cucamonga on Foothill Blvd. The metal shavings caused a burnt smell to emanate from the corn bread as well as a burn mark to appear on a paper towel that was used while warming the cornbread in our microwave oven. I am assuming that the metal shavings are from either the baking pan or some utensil that is used in the removal of the corn bread from the pan. I am in possession of the remaining piece of cornbread that has a clearly visible strip of metal embedded in it and also a second smaller piece that contains some sort of burnt material embedded as well if you wish to examine it. I have contacted Boston Market and hereby request, that you take what ever action is within your authority to ask Boston Market to implement measures to prevent further contamination of the cornbread that is being served at this location. I underwent planned vocal cord surgery on Monday the 26th and am unable to speak at this time. I am hoping that my vocal cords have healed enough by early next week should you wish to speak to me regarding this incident. Until that time I may be contacted via email.
