

ICE AGE LAKES IN THE MOJAVE

A San Bernardino County Museum Association Trip to the Mojave Desert with Curator of Paleontology Eric Scott, Senior Curator Kathleen Springer, and Curator of Geology J. Chris Sagebiel.

Saturday, April 25, 2009

Join us on a tour of ancient Ice Age lakes in the Mojave Desert led by Curator of Paleontology Eric Scott, Senior Curator Kathleen Springer and Curator of Geology J. Chris Sagebiel. The field trip will tour the western and central Mojave Desert, with stops to view some of the better-known Ice Age lakes located along the Interstate 15 freeway. Stops are scheduled at Lake Manix east of Barstow and Lake Mojave near Baker, with a stop in Victorville as well.

On our journey we'll see the desert with new eyes: where today we find empty plains and dry stream channels, we'll imagine the many freshwater lakes and rivers that once shimmered throughout the Mojave. The curators will discuss what the region was like during the Ice Ages and the animals that once lived near those ancient lakes and streams.

Stops will be brief and involve minimal amounts of hiking. Hats, sunglasses and hiking shoes are recommended. The length of the trip, which leaves the museum at 9 a.m., will be about 8 to 10 hours.

$60 ($50 Museum Association members) per person includes van transportation, lunch, and snacks.

Space is limited, and pre-paid reservations are required.
