A Serious Threat Has Come to San Bernardino County Citrus

A plant disease that kills citrus trees has been found in California. The disease, called Huanglongbing or citrus greening disease, isn’t harmful to humans, but it is fatal for citrus trees and has no cure. The disease is spread by a pest called the Asian Citrus Psyllid as it feeds on citrus tree leaves. Until researchers find a solution, California homeowners who enjoy growing fresh citrus fruit in their yards, and California farmers tending to $2.5 billion worth of citrus fruit trees must work together to protect their trees.

By visiting the county’s website you can learn more about how to detect the pest and disease and protect California’s beloved citrus heritage.

Combat Huanglongbing Disease and the Asian Citrus Psyllid by submitting an electronic form found online at www.SBCounty.gov/AWM

DISCOVERING THE WONDERS OF OUR DISTRICT

BARSTOW & THE MOJAVE DESERT

Once a small mining center and railroad town in California’s Mojave Desert, Barstow is located at the junction of 3 major highways -- Interstate 15, Interstate 40 and State Highway 58. It is centrally located in the western Mojave at the entrance to the Mojave National Preserve and is home of the U.S. Army National Training Center, Marine Corps Logistics Base, NASA’s Goldstone Deep Space Network and Burlington Northern-Santa Fe Railroad Yards.

Barstow is a great starting point when touring the western Mojave Desert.
